Cornbread Lovers Unite

Every spring cornbread fanatics descend upon the National Cornbread Festival and National Cornbread Cookoff in South Pittsburg, Tennessee. This year's event, which takes place April 26-27, will be judged by magazine and food editors from across the country. Our own Editorial Director Cindy Smith Cooper judged last year's competition. The "main dish" category of the cookoff requires entrants to create a recipe with 1 cup of Martha White Cornmeal as the primary ingredient, and the recipe must be cooked in a Lodge cast-iron 10-inch skillet. Jenny Flake of Gilbert, Arizona, last year's winner, wooed judges with her Chicken Taco Cornbread Wedges with Ranchero Cilantro Drizzle. Lanie Smith of Topeka, Kansas, took second place with her Caribbean Cornbread Crab Cakes.

In addition to the cookoff, the festival features cornbread-eating and buttermilk-chugging contests, plenty of food, a carnival, music, and arts and crafts.
